African American Studies	AF AMER 188A	Special Courses	Investigation of minstrelsy phenomenon. Using advertisements, film, sitcoms, television news, music, and other media forms, students interrogate processes and relationships between media/cultural production of ethnic and racial identities through use of minstrelsy and ways in which minstrelsy has been appropriated and commodified. In other words, how have consumers of mass media been bamboozled into re-invention of minstrelsy and/or blackface in way that is deemed acceptable? Discussion of how cultural production of minstrelsy attempts to shape our worldview. Toward this endeavor, students take critical look at television news as instrument of normalizing racist notions of Blackness.	4	TR	10:00am-12:05pm	413828110	Lewis, L.I.
