Call for Applications:

Graduate Mentor – McNair Research Scholars Program

Graduate Research Mentor Position – Summer 2022

The UCLA McNair Research Scholars Program helps first-generation, low-income, and underrepresented students identify and apply to graduate school programs, conduct independent research projects, and prepare for graduate school entrance exams. McNair GSR/Mentors lead virtual seminars, conduct virtual workshops, and hold individual virtual mentoring appointments.

McNair Mentors meet in-person with McNair students to discuss research agendas and the graduate school application process including: researching and choosing graduate programs, preparing personal statements and statements of purpose, obtaining letters of recommendation, and funding. Mentors also assist McNair students in developing their research proposal, literature review, and senior thesis. For more information about the McNair Research Scholars Program, please visit our website at

About the UCLA Academic Advancement Program:

The UCLA Academic Advancement Program has a threefold mission: 1) to ensure the academic success and graduation of students who have been historically underrepresented in higher education; 2) inform and prepare AAP students for graduate and professional schools; and 3) to develop the academic, scientific, political, economic, and community leadership necessary to transform society. The successful integration of our three-fold mission strengthens our commitment to access, equity and excellence.
